What You Should Know About
 Confined Spaces

by
John F. Rekus
 MS, CIH, CSP

April 15, 1998
 Park Place Ramada
 Renaissance Hotel
 240 Brownlow Ave.
 Dartmouth , Nova Scotia

John F. Rekus, PE, CIH, CSP is an independent consultant who specializes in helping businesses increase profitability by reducing the costs associated with workplace accidents and injuries. His strong technical background, practical management experience, and outstanding communications skills make him exceptionally well suited to provide this unique professional service.

Employed for almost two decades by Maryland Occupational Safety and Health, Mr. Rekus has developed both expert technical knowledge of OSHA standards and the practical management skills needed to integrate state-of-the-art safety principles, methods and practices into the progressive, customer-centered, business environment.

For many years he interpreted and explained the ambiguous and often conflicting requirements of OSHA regulations in ways that were understandable to executives and hourly workers alike. Now he uses his unique skills in a private consulting practice focused on finding practical, cost-effective solutions to difficult compliance problems, and improving profitability by helping to minimize losses from workplace accidents and injuries.

PUBLICATIONS: Complete Confined Spaces Handbook, 400 pages with over 300 illustrations. The only textbook on this subject in the world. Author of more than fifty articles in such diverse journals as Fire Chief, the Journal of Protective Coatings and Linings, Occupational Health and Safety, Fire Command, the Welding Journal and Occupational Hazards.

John Rekus has written the world's only text on confined spaces. Join us as he uses his unique knowledge and perspective to discuss the complex subject of confined space entry. John has a dynamic and explosive presentation that will entertain and instruct. John will use personal experience and case studies to illustrate important concepts. Don't miss this unique opportunity.
